Harnessing Intelligence

Intelligence and counter-intelligence agencies of the Government necessarily do much of their work in secrecy. Nevertheless, they must be subjected to a reasonable measure of democratic control. They need the whip of criticism if they are to function at full efficiency; and they need the reins of congressional regulation to keep them on the route they are supposed to travel. Left altogether undirected, they could become a menace to freedom.

A thorough study of intelligence activities is urgently needed, therefore—along with an equally thorough study of counter-intelligence activities. It seems altogether unlikely, however, that such a study—conducted with the requisite detachment, nonpartisanship and penetration—can be expected in the midst of a presidential election campaign from any committee of Congress.

Of the 20 standing committees of the House of Representatives, the House Committee on Un-American Activities seems, by all odds, the least apt for such an undertaking; and of all the 437 members of the House, Rep. Francis Walter seems to be the least qualified to direct the study. For one thing, this committee is a partisan in the cold war waged by the FBI against the CIA. For another, too often it has been a hunter of heresy, not a student of security in the broad sense. Fresh evidence of this was offered by Mr. Walter's assertion the other day that more than 1000 security risks now hold Government jobs.

The House Armed Services Committee headed by Rep. Carl Vinson is, of course, much more rational and responsible, and has much more claim to jurisdiction. But something more is required today than a mere examination of personnel clearance procedures and operating methods. What is wanted is an over-all evaluation of the effects of the intelligence agencies on national security and on national freedom.

Nothing ought to be curtailed from this evaluation, although much will have to be kept in confidence—kept, this is to say, from publication. But the evaluators will need to find out what, for example, the CIA is doing undercover, how resourcefully and accurately it is garnering the information for policy decisions, how effectively it presents what it learns.

The evaluators will have to judge the extent to which the counter-intelligence activities of the FBI, as distinguished from its law-enforcement activities, have served security or impaired freedom. They also will need to find out what has not been known for 35 years—the extent to which the FBI in the name of counter-intelligence, has compiled dossiers on law-abiding citizens simply because they expressed heterodox opinions or joined organizations of which the FBI disapproved.

This evaluation ought to be made by a commission of outstanding Americans whose judgment would command universal respect. Perhaps they ought to be selected, as in some past instances, jointly by the President and congressional leaders. They should be men of such stature that they can be trusted no less than Mr. Dulles and Mr. Hoover with access to all manner of classified information. And they should be outside the pull of political partisanship.

Such a commission ought to be recreated periodically—at least once a decade—to pass judgment on the performance of those agencies which, by reason of their duties, must function without the congressional scrutiny and public criticism which serve so usefully to keep the rest of the Government on a proper course. Such a commission could do its work without the hampering influence of a permanent watchdog committee of Congress. Reporting periodically to Congress and the country, it could strengthen security and strengthen public confidence in the indispensable instruments of security.

Reference is made to L'Allier to Belmont memorandum dated 9/29/60, particularly the paragraph pertaining to an editorial which appeared in the 9/12/60 issue of "The Washington Post and Times Herald." The Director has noted "Was the editorial of Sept 12 called to my attention; likewise the document?"

With regard to the editorial, [redacted] one of the regularly assigned newspaper clippers in the Crime Research Section, recalls clipping and mounting two copies of this editorial. The original was sent to the Director's Office by special messenger along with other clippings from this paper. A duplicate was sent to Mr. DeLoach's Office for information.

Mr. Wick recalls seeing the duplicate of this clipping which he held to be shown to Mr. DeLoach on his return to the city.

The inquiry concerning the document is being handled by the Domestic Intelligence Division.

Reference is made to Jones to DeLoach memorandum dated 9-30-60 in which it was stated that the original of the newspaper clipping from "The Washington Post and Times Herald" of 9-12-60 had been sent to the Director's Office by Special Messenger. The Director has stated, "I want to see the originals of both. H" (This in reference to the newspaper clipping and the document which is being handled by the Domestic Intelligence Division.)

Since receipt of the Director's request a continual search for the editorial of 9-12-60 has been made. Files have been searched with negative results. Personnel who would have a logical interest in this matter have been queried with negative results in an effort to locate the original clipping.

A check of all mail processed in the Records Section has been negative to date. Search is continuing. It is noted the clipping would undoubtedly be destroyed if not marked "file."

Re: [REDACTED]

Notes of interview with subject by the original source revealed subject had no significant intelligence data that would warrant FBI getting involved prior to public defection.

New York Office felt subject had no informant potential because of his desire for a complete break. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] through an intermediary, New York Office felt subject should not be interviewed by FBI prior to defection since such an interview could be construed as FBI endorsement of the promise. Accordingly we instructed NY on 9-25-60 not to interview subject until after subject defected and held his press conference. In this way we can get any data of interest without participating in a defection which has not been checked out as to its validity [REDACTED]

It is obvious that the initiative for defection and a press interview came from the subject himself. [REDACTED]

With respect to an anonymous communication found in the men's room at the Department of Commerce, the Director has inquired as to why he was not advised of this on September 15 or 16, and noted that there was a lapse of two weeks before any memorandum was sent to him.

The anonymous communication was delivered to our Liaison Representative on September 15. A memorandum was prepared under date of September 16, which was sent to our Laboratory and to the Identification Division to have checks made of the National Security file and for latent prints. This was initialed for this Division by Sizoo, acting in my absence in order that the Laboratory examination might be initiated as the original evidence was attached. We checked the ten names through the Bureau files and found that several of the individuals had been investigated by the Bureau under applicant-type investigations. No derogatory information was found concerning the individuals mentioned in the anonymous note. Thereafter, we prepared a memorandum for Central Intelligence Agency, State Department and the Commerce Department setting forth the results of our examination of the anonymous communication.

We did not prepare an informative memorandum on September 16 to the Director because we felt this was a hoax and did not warrant taking up the Director's time. If the Laboratory examination or our files had shown this to be significant, we would have sent up a memorandum at once for the Director's information.

We regret that our judgment was faulty.

Reference is made to a memorandum from L'Allier to Belmont dated September 29, 1960, regarding [redacted] b1 b3

The Director inquired as to whether the anonymous communication was called to his attention. It was not called to the Director's attention inasmuch as it was felt it was a hoax.

Regarding the anonymous communication at the Department of Commerce the following is noted:

On September 15, 1960, Mr. John W. Phillips, Security Control Officer, Department of Commerce, delivered an anonymous communication to the Bureau which was found in the men's room at the Department of Commerce. A memorandum was prepared dated September 16, 1960, setting forth the information concerning the anonymous communication. The original note was attached to this memorandum and recommendations were made that the original evidence be forwarded to the FBI Laboratory to be checked through the National Security File and to the Identification Division for processing for possible latent fingerprint impressions.

After these examination were completed and no information that could be used to identify the author of the communication was found, a memorandum was prepared under date of September 29, 1960, setting forth recommendations as to the Bureau's position with respect to further investigation of this matter. A letter to the interested agencies was attached to this memorandum. This memorandum was revised on September 30, 1960, to add additional information regarding the possibility that this communication was a hoax [redacted] b1 b3

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON

MR. MOHR
MR. PARSONS
MR. BELMONT
MR. ROSEN
MR. TROTTER
MR. DE LOACH

Yesterday morning I attended the meeting of the National Security Council at the White House which was presided over by the President.

The first item on the agenda was the report upon the status of national security programs on June 30, 1960. This report was made to the National Security Council by Mr. Russell Ash. Upon the conclusion of the report, the President inquired whether it contained any recommendations and was advised it did not, that it was a status report.

The thought has occurred to me it might be well to consider and explore the desirability next year of including any pertinent recommendations which would be practicable and at the same time be of help in the maintenance of internal security insofar as our interests are concerned.

There next came up for discussion the Martin and Mitchell case, and the President inquired of me as to the situation concerning them. I advised the President that the FBI had not conducted an investigation of this case, either at the present time nor prior to their appointment. I stated they were investigated by agencies of the Defense Department and that during the course of the investigation there was adverse information on file which related to the fact that Martin was noticeably unstable, socially immature, and was not desired for assignment at sea in the naval service by persons who had served with him. I stated Mitchell had been found to have homosexual tendencies, but in spite of these findings upon Martin and Mitchell, they were recommended by the National Security Agency.

observed that while it was, of course, imperative that thorough investigations be made of persons in sensitive positions, the investigating agencies making such inquiries could not and did not have any responsibility under the present procedure for the dismissal or retention of such persons in Government employment. I stated the weakness in the Martin and Mitchell case seemed to be the fact that those individuals who evaluated the reports submitted had failed to put the proper evaluation upon the emotional stability of both of these individuals. The President expressed amazement that these two men had been retained after such information had been developed, and he instructed the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Lyman B. Lemnitzer, to call in the officials who were responsible for clearing these two individuals and in the words of the President, "Give them hell."

The President observed that much had been heard, of course, about Martin and Mitchell and other defectors from time to time, but no one seems to pay any attention to handling properly the cases of those individuals who clear such persons in the face of adverse information developed during the course of investigations.

The discussion then turned to the liability of having homosexuals in Government employment. I cited the case of the Assistant Director of Security for the Atomic Energy Commission and stated that the FBI in all instances called to the attention of the interested Departments any such information which comes to the FBI but that there is no way for us to know whether the individual is retained or not.

The Secretary of the Treasury inquired as to whether there was a list of homosexuals maintained by this Government and I stated that there was no specific list as such but that there was considerable information in our files concerning homosexuals and, as I had indicated, such information was furnished to the interested Government agencies.

October 14, 1960

Memorandum for Messrs. Tolson, Mohr, Parsons, Belmont, Rosen, Trotter, and DeLoach

Mr. Allen Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency commented that in his agency they always give all applicants for appointment lie detector tests and that he thought this was quite valuable.

The President inquired of Allen Dulles whether all persons are fingerprinted who apply for appointment in his agency and whether the results of the lie detector tests are furnished to the FBI. Mr. Dulles stated he did not know whether applicants were fingerprinted and did not know whether information discovered through use of the polygraph was furnished to the FBI. The President stated he thought that the fingerprints and the polygraph findings should be furnished to the FBI because it was likely that the applicant might apply for a position in another Government agency and there would be no central place where the information could be found and for that reason, he felt the FBI should be supplied such information. Mr. Dulles stated he would look into this procedure in his agency.

There was some discussion then upon the part of the President and the Attorney General as well as myself about the setting up of a list of homosexuals in order that there would be some central place to which inquiries might be directed concerning individuals who may apply for Government employment or be in Government employment. The President was of the opinion that this information should be in the FBI and suggested that steps be taken to see that we gathered together in the FBI any information concerning such tendencies upon the part of individuals who are either in Government or may apply for positions in Government so such information would be promptly available to all Government agencies.

The President seemed to be greatly concerned about this entire problem and left no doubt in the minds of any attending the meeting of the National Security Council that he was thoroughly opposed to the employment or retention in employment of individuals who might have such tendencies.

October 14, 1960

Memorandum for Messrs. Tolson, Mohr, Parsons, Belmont, Rosen, Trotter, and DeLoach

I think we should immediately give serious consideration to seeing that we get from the police departments information concerning homosexuals, particularly from the Washington, D. C., Police Department, which seems to have more complete information and file upon each individuals who may be employed or apply for employment in the Government.

Very truly yours,

J E H

Detectives of the Robbery Squad which reflected an interview with [REDACTED] This report stated that [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] reported that he left some friends on Connecticut Avenue, N.W., and took a cab to the Roger Smith Hotel, where he was going to eat. After he arrived there, he did not go into the hotel, but instead started to walk home.

The report reflected that at 12:55 a.m., November 1, 1960, while walking west in the 1800 block of F Street, N.W., and when about ten feet from the door of 1900 F Street, N.W., [REDACTED] reported he was approached from behind by three or four colored males. They grabbed him and tore the left rear

Assistant Attorney General J. Walter Yeagley of the Internal Security Division of the Department of Justice called and stated he thought he ought to bring me up to date on the Rolando Arcadio Masferrer Rojas case (Neutrality Matters).

Mr. Yeagley stated that the Bureau had investigated and submitted a detailed report on the case last Thursday or Friday and his Division thinks they have a case, not a real open and shut case, but as far as the facts and laws are concerned, it looks like enough to go before a Grand Jury. Mr. Yeagley stated this is delicate in view of the break in diplomatic relations with Cuba, because if we start a Grand Jury, people are going to ask which side are we on, Castro's or the United States. Mr. Yeagley continued that as late as last Friday, he believed it was, he had a call from the State Department to see what we were doing, whether going ahead or not, and he, Mr. Yeagley, thought when he called the State Department back, as he intended, to get confirmation that they ought to go ahead despite the break in relations, but he thought he ought to mention it to me because from the Justice Department's standpoint, they would normally proceed, but when they go to Miami, Justice is going to have the public relations problem.

I told Mr. Yeagley that I thought it would be a difficult one and that I recalled last week, I thought it was, some fellow in the State Department had wanted to know if we would not go to Masferrer and ask him to refrain from any activities that might embarrass this Government and we refused and said it was the State Department's place to do it. This chap replied he at least made the effort to get us to do it but thought our reaction would be what it was, but it took so many days and weeks to get something like that cleared in the State Department, he had hoped we might do it on his request. Mr. Yeagley inquired if I thought this represented Masferrer's position, and I told Mr. Yeagley it did not; that it was the man in the State Department, but that we had received word in Miami from Masferrer, or his man, that Masferrer would be very glad to refrain from any action of any kind and abide by whatever this Government wanted him to do and this State Department man, having been advised of this, was the one who asked us to go to Masferrer and ask if he would not lay low for the time being. After checking with Mr. Belmont, I advised Mr. Yeagley the man's name was [redacted] Special Assistant, Bureau of Inter American Affairs. I stated [redacted] apparently thought we would fall for it right away, but our man wisely refused on the spot and [redacted] said then that he had assumed that would be our reaction but it was impossible to get the State Department to clear something like this for days or weeks. I stated that this occurred, of course, before we broke relations with Cuba and whether that would have any effect or not I did not know, but I did think that for us to start proceedings now is going to be seized upon by the press in this country with severe criticism and it will be the Department of Justice that would be holding the bag, not the State Department as they won't do it.

I stated that if he, Mr. Yeagley, had been following the news releases, there was quite a number of Senators and Congressmen who have been loud in their commendation of what the Administration has done in breaking relations with Cuba and indicated it should have been done long ago. I stated in the whole area in Miami public opinion is strongly sympathetic to the anti-Castro forces and in many of the hotels there are waiters and busboys who were very prominent in Cuba, having been lawyers, doctors and dentists, and you also have 40,000 or 50,000 refugees and the papers there each day have stories on the front page about the refugees; that at Christmastime a lot of food was sent in by religious groups, et cetera, and there was quite a celebration for the refugee children; and in the midst of that, if we come out and start proceedings against Masferrer when he stands as being against Castro, I thought there would be very bad public reaction, both in the newspapers and in Congress, as everyone now is saying the Administration has done the thing they should have done long ago, with which I agree. I stated, however, that the State Department is not going to take the blame nor is CIA and it would be up to the Justice Department.

I stated it was almost parallel to the situation mentioned in Drew Pearson's column the past couple of days about the Hoffa case in Florida. I stated Pearson had jumped on Vice President Nixon for having tried to prevent the prosecution of Hoffa and successfully preventing the indictment until after the election and then the Attorney General had gone ahead and indicted and now leaves it all on the new Attorney General. I stated I did not know whether Nixon interceded and I had my doubts, but, on the other hand, the case in Florida against Hoffa is fairly strong and I thought the indictment was proper. I stated I did know it had been held up a long time before finally going ahead; that the Special Assistant on the case, Dowd (phonetic), seemed to be a capable fellow and he had been trying to get an indictment for some time but there was a question as to the individuals to be included, that there was no question about Hoffa, but a question about a third party in Detroit. I stated now Pearson is trying to make it appear as if it were done just as a dying gasp by the current Administration and I think there would be the same reaction in the Masferrer case.

I advised Mr. Yeagley that he could use the information about the call from Devine and indicate the position we took and it seemed to me that the State Department ought to put in black and white what they want done. Mr. Yeagley stated he thought he had to ask them to. I stated this was loaded with dynamite, because of the way the public has been reacting in Florida; that there is a hatred of Castro and I cited some incidents which had occurred while I was recently in Miami and it seemed to me that with that kind of public opinion, they were inviting great trouble if they went ahead against Masferrer. Mr. Yeagley stated he thought I was right and he appreciated my help.

SUBJECT: THE JOINT STUDY GROUP REPORT OF FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES

SYNOPSIS:

In May, 1960, Bureau of the Budget asked for a review of United States foreign intelligence effort. In July of this year representatives of the Bureau of the Budget, Secretary of Defense, Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), and White House formed "Study Group" and initiated review of "organizational and managerial" aspects of foreign intelligence. (S)

Enclosed is a copy of a 141-page report dated December 15, 1960, setting forth results of study. Bureau was not involved in responsibilities of survey made. On July 29, 1960, we gave Group briefing regarding our relations with other United States intelligence agencies. Only references to Bureau in report pertain to our connection with United States Intelligence Board (USIB). Report reflects 80% of United States intelligence personnel doing work related to Department of Defense (DOD) activity.

Report criticizes: USIB for not giving adequate guidance and coordination; State Department for not utilizing its personnel for intelligence collection.

Group feels too little attention paid to counterintelligence and to security of intelligence operations. Recommendation made to reduce USIB to four members composed of Director of Central Intelligence, representative of State, Defense and Joint Chiefs of Staff. The Bureau would serve in ad hoc capacity. Group emphasized

Memorandum Belmont to Parsons
Re: THE JOINT STUDY GROUP REPORT

b3

[redacted] Allan Evans, Special Assistant to the Director of Intelligence and Research, Department of State; General Graves B. Erskine, Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for Special Operations; Robert M. Macy, Chief of the International Division, Bureau of the Budget; and James S. Lay, Jr., Executive Secretary, National Security Council (NSC). Pat Coyne acted as an observer for the President's Board of Consultants on Foreign Intelligence (committee organized by the President to monitor foreign intelligence activities).

Inasmuch as the Study Group restricted its review to foreign intelligence activities, the Bureau did not get involved in the preparation of the report. On July 29, 1960, I appeared before members of the Group and briefed them regarding the Bureau's relations with United States intelligence agencies.

[redacted]
[redacted] Any results will be of interest to us because of our dealings with the interested agencies. Secondly, the report has been prepared shortly prior to the advent of a new administration which may take special notice of this document and initiate some action. Indirectly, the report could also be related to activity which might take place in Congress relative to the establishment of a Joint Intelligence Committee, which has been proposed from time to time for the purpose of setting up a system of monitoring United States Foreign intelligence activities.

REVIEW OF REPORT

A review of the enclosed document has disclosed the following highlights of interest to us:

(1) Purpose of Study

The review of foreign intelligence activities was conducted to study "organizational and managerial" aspects of foreign intelligence in areas such as (a) procedures for handling intelligence requirements; (b) appraisal of intelligence collection of costs; (c) coordination of intelligence activities; and (d) coordination of research and development.

(2) References to FBI

On Page 3 it is stated that the Group concluded its work by having meetings with representatives of the intelligence community, except the "representatives of the FBI and the Atomic Energy Commission." On Page 7 the Bureau is identified as one of the agencies which makes up the "intelligence community." The United States Intelligence Board (USIB) is described on Page 11 and in referring to the members it is stated that the FBI is an Agency not engaged in foreign intelligence activities but sits on USIB as an occasional contributor. The Group recommends a reorganization of USIB by reducing it to four members; namely, Director of Central Intelligence, State Department, Secretary of Defense, and Joint Chiefs of Staff with "ad hoc representation from the FBI and the Atomic Energy Commission" (Page 109, 110, and 114).

(3) Intelligence Community Manpower

The report states that more than 80% of United States intelligence personnel are doing work related to Department of Defense activity. (S)

b1
b3
the report reflects that there are 26 committees under the USIB. This gives some idea concerning the extensive and complex picture of United States intelligence. The Bureau is a member of only six committees, but in order to fully protect our interests we do follow the activities of the others.

(4) Criticism of the USIB

The Group is critical of USIB stating that the unit has been primarily a "deliberation body." It is criticized for not devoting adequate time to its coordinative responsibilities and the Group reports: "We are not aware that the Board has ever provided over-all program guidance for the entire community. Problems confronting the Board are all too frequently merely noted or referred to a committee."

(5) Criticism of Foreign Service (Department of State)

The Foreign Service is criticized for showing indifference to intelligence because it "thinks of intelligence in old-fashioned terms." The report indicates that so many Foreign Service personnel are not used and not even trained to be in a position to acquire intelligence information.

b1

[REDACTED]

(7) Photographic Intelligence

The report places considerable stress on the importance of photographic and other visual-alien observation. This is described as the most precise form of intelligence collection. Considerable credit is given to the U-2 program which, according to the report, provided what was probably "the greatest amount of valuable information obtainable from any single source." In view of the importance of this type of intelligence, the Group devoted considerable time to the matter of organizing a photographic intelligence center which could be made available to all pertinent agencies. This may necessitate the issuance of a new NSC intelligence directive.

(11) Criticism Regarding Counterintelligence and Security

Too little attention is paid to counterintelligence and security efforts. According to the Group, the premises occupied by United States personnel overseas are not being protected by adequate standards of physical security and furthermore, personnel were not being properly indoctrinated concerning security precautions.

The report reads that the Group was impressed by the intensity and scope of communist efforts to penetrate United States classified operations overseas and because of this, the Group emphasized the importance of improved counterespionage.

Re: THE JOINT STUDY GROUP REPORT

(12) Criticism of Requirements of Evaluation (Handling of Requests and Evaluation of Collected Information)

The Group was very strong in pointing out that there was no centralized system whereby any one individual or agency can determine if needed information has been collected, how it might be located for exploitation and if it is not available, can it be obtained. The report states that the effort in this field is frustrated through lack of coordination and that the total personnel assigned to the work is excessive in relation to the results achieved. It recommends that the USIB establish a central facility for coordinating all requirements levied for intelligence collection.

(13) Coordination

This is probably the most important section of the report. The Group observed that there has been misunderstanding and confusion in regard to the philosophy of coordination.

Re: THE JOINT STUDY GROUP REPORT

[REDACTED]

With regard to the problems encountered in establishing necessary coordination the Group suggested that USIB establish a unit of "senior officers of USIB members" who would be responsible for carefully screening matters and papers to be presented to the Board. This unit would also review the committee structure under USIB.

(14) Reorganization of USIB

The Group felt that USIB should be reorganized in order to become more efficient and assume a stronger role in the management of foreign intelligence activities. It was recommended that the size of the Board be reduced to four members; namely, the Director of Central Intelligence (Chairman), one representative each of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Defense, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff with "ad hoc representation from the FBI and Atomic Energy Commission."

b3

[REDACTED] (S)
[REDACTED] In addition, the report recommended the establishment of

Re: THE JOINT STUDY GROUP REPORT
OF FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES

"a full-time group of intelligence professionals of a primary allegiance to the intelligence community rather than to any one agency" who would assist the Director of Central Intelligence in bringing about the necessary coordination and minimize the conflict of interest problems.

In addition to recommending the establishment of the above-described "coordination staff" to assist the Director of Central Intelligence, the Study Group also recommended the establishment of a "management" staff to assist USIB in the handling of intelligence community problems of an administrative or management type.

(15) Cost of Foreign Intelligence Effort

The Group admits that it was unable to ascertain with any degree of accuracy the cost of the foreign intelligence effort. Accounting systems, varying interpretations of different agencies, etc., presented too many obstacles. The report states that "considering all the imponderables involved in trying to estimate the cost" [REDACTED]

b2 (16) Research and Development

The Group recommended a better system for exchanging research and development information. The report went into automatic data processing, information storage and retrieval, mechanic translation projects, and into research dealing with communications (audio-surveillance field). The Group apparently was impressed with potential technical information to be obtained through foreign sources, particularly in the communications field.

(17) The Future

The report reflected that a primary responsibility of the intelligence community was "long-range planning." Stress is also placed on the importance of anticipating technological developments. It is stated: "These developments should be imaginatively utilized by United States intelligence itself for

SUBJECT: NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL (NSC)
ACTION ON RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY
JOINT STUDY GROUP ON FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED EXCEPT WHERE SHOWN OTHERWISE

The United States Intelligence Board (USIB) Secretary made available the enclosed copy of NSC action (1-12-61)

My memorandum of January 10, last, referred to the NSC consideration of this matter and the fact that the Attorney General was attending this NSC meeting

The enclosure reflects that NSC action on this recommendation was delayed until the "internal adjustments" are completed within the Defense intelligence agencies. All of the recommendations dealing with the collection and coordination of foreign intelligence activities were approved, while those recommendations associated with the reorganization of the Defense Department were delayed until such action within Defense can be accomplished.

The enclosure reflects that changes in NSC intelligence directives (Numbers 1, 2, 3, 5, and 6) were approved. All of these changes are in the form of amendments requested by the Secretary of Defense and are designed to strengthen his position in effecting Defense reorganization. These changes do not affect the Bureau.

Memorandum Belmont to Parsons
Re: NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL (NSC)
ACTION ON RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY
JOINT STUDY GROUP ON FOREIGN

OBSERVATIONS:

Further action on those recommendations, including the reorganization of USIB membership structure which were passed over by the above NSC action, will only come about after progress within the Defense Department to reorganize and streamline its intelligence activities. According to Liaison contacts in the Joint Staff, such action is presently bogged down pending firm policy direction from the new Secretary of Defense and his assistants. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] (The enclosure notes the President's conviction that "further streamlining of the entire foreign intelligence organization still needs to be accomplished.") Dulles added that pursuant to the above NSC action he would be prepared at the next USIB meeting to name his Director of the NPIC and additionally, propose the responsibilities for the "management group" which was approved by the NSC to analyze and propose solutions of an administrative nature concerning foreign intelligence activities. This management group is to be composed of representatives from USIB members.

ACTION:

For information. Liaison will follow the developments concerning reorganization within Department of Defense.
